About the Criminal Justice Coordinating Council

The Criminal Justice Coordinating Council (CJCC) for the District of Columbia is an independent agency dedicated to continually improving the administration of criminal justice in the city. The mission of the CJCC is to serve as the forum for identifying issues and their solutions, proposing actions, and facilitating cooperation that will improve public safety and the related criminal and juvenile justice services for District of Columbia residents, visitors, victims and offenders. The CJCC draws upon local and federal agencies and individuals to develop recommendations and strategies for accomplishing this mission, guided by the principles of creative collaboration, community involvement, and effective resource utilization. The CJCC is committed to developing targeted funding strategies and the comprehensive management of information through the use of integrated information technology systems and social science research.

CJCC's Reentry Steering Committee and the workgroups falling under its purview seek to support the successful reentry of those returning to the District after incarceration with a focus on high-risk offenders by improving data-driven services and increasing effective interagency collaboration and planning. The Housing Workgroup, which was formed under the auspices of the Reentry Steering Committee, was convened to focus on improving and expanding available housing options and evaluating current transitional housing options. In carrying out its charge, the workgroup bears in mind the Housing ABCDs: (a) availability of units; (b) barriers preventing people from getting into units; (c) connecting with the people who need housing help and providing information and assistance; and (d) securing the data needed to create a clear picture of the effects of stable versus unstable housing on the recidivism rate of the returning citizen population.

Directory of Housing Resources for Returning Citizens

(Updated as of May 18, 2015)

The following housing directory is a compilation of available housing options for citizens returning to the District of Columbia from incarceration. Halfway houses included in this chart are available for individuals under supervised release. The halfway house information is for informational purposes only, as residing in one of these locations is reserved for referrals from the Court Services and Offender Supervision Agency (CSOSA) and the Bureau of Prisons (BOP). The other housing options are classified by the stated definitions below. Criminal Justice Coordinating Council (CJCC) defined the housing options contained in this list based on the services provided in the housing facility; therefore definitions may not necessarily reflect the type of housing with which a location self-identifies.

The majority of the housing options were obtained from the Public Defender Service (PDS) Housing Directory and from the Office on Returning Citizen Affairs (ORCA). Once the housing options were identified, they were classified into the appropriate categories presented below. Each housing resource was called and a representative of that location was asked a series of questions in an effort to obtain information pertaining to entry and eligibility requirements, services provided for residents, other general inquiries.

Shelters-Overnight: Overnight shelters are available on a first come, first serve basis. Individuals must depart on a daily basis and are permitted to return at a designated time. The majority of these shelters provide a bed, meals, and shower facilities.

Shelters-Temporary: Temporary shelters are shelters that permit individuals to stay for a longer, specified duration than overnight shelters, but do not necessarily offer wrap-around services.

Transitional Housing: Transitional housing provides stable housing and wraparound services to individuals in an effort to transition them to Permanent Supportive Housing.

Single Room Occupancy: Single Room Occupancy is affordable housing that is not linked to any other supportive services.

Permanent Supportive Housing: Supportive housing is affordable housing linked to accessible mental health, substance addiction, employment, and other support services. There is no time limit attached to residence in permanent supportive housing.

Public Housing: Public Housing units provided by the District of Columbia Housing Authority (DCHA) after an application process.
