Overview

Background

The Court Services and Offender Supervision Agency’s (CSOSA or the Agency) mission is to effectively supervise adults under our jurisdiction to enhance public safety, reduce recidivism, support the fair administration of justice, and promote accountability, inclusion and success through the implementation of evidence-based practices in close collaboration with our criminal justice partners and the community. In support of its mission, CSOSA opened the Re-Entry and Sanctions Center (RSC) in February 2006.

The RSC is a residential facility that adheres to the Risk-Need-Responsivity (RNR) model of offender rehabilitation. Specifically, the RSC provides re-entry services to:

- High-risk offenders/defendants who are non-compliant or at risk of violating their release conditions; and
- Inmates from the Bureau of Prisons (BOP) or the District of Columbia (DC) Jail, who are released to the RSC under CSOSA supervision.

The offenders/defendants present with:

- Extensive histories of substance use disorders;
- Co-occurring mental health disorders; and/or
- Substantial safety risk to the community.

The RSC provides offenders/defendants with structured, holistic, and multidisciplinary interventions designed to address one or more criminogenic risks and needs that pose challenges to the offenders’/defendants’ successful re-entry into the community and compliance with release conditions.

This policy statement establishes RSC’s role in the Agency’s comprehensive strategy to uphold public safety by providing risk-based supervision and assessment-driven interventions.

Summary of Changes

- Assigns a new policy number.
- Outlines the principles guiding RSC programming.
- Defines terms.
- Outlines the roles and responsibilities of Agency staff under this policy.

Programming

The RSC programming is data-driven and subscribes to the philosophy that criminality, substance use, and co-occurring disorders can be effectively identified, stabilized, treated, and successfully managed with evidence-based practices.

The RSC, through the use of validated tools, completes comprehensive evaluations to assess a broad range of dynamic factors including, but not limited to treatment readiness, cognitive-emotional states, temperamental/personality factors, acute substance, mental and physical health conditions, as well as criminogenic risks and needs.

The findings inform the development of offenders’/defendants’:

- Individualized case plans that prioritize needs and match offenders/defendants to the level of care needed to target criminogenic factors, address barriers to re-entry and reduce the likelihood of recidivism.
- Discharge/transition plans mapping out a long-term continuum of care designed to support positive behavioral changes throughout the supervision period.

RSC interventions are evidence-based and delivered by a multidisciplinary team of highly qualified professionals dedicated to meeting the needs of offenders/defendants. The interventions include, but are not limited to:

- Trauma-Informed Care;
- Individual cognitive behavioral therapy;
- Relapse prevention;
- Violence reduction;
- Aggression replacement;
- Motivational enhancement;
- Anti-criminal modeling;
- Cognitive Restructuring;
- Employment readiness and vocational programming; and
- Recreational and leisure activities.

Principles

• The RSC meets the re-entry needs of high-risk offenders/defendants by providing evidence-based interventions that prepare them to:
  – Refrain from engaging in criminal activities;
  – Support recovery and prevent relapse;
  – Succeed in a treatment modality (e.g., intensive outpatient, residential, etc.);
  – Adhere to supervision requirements;
  – Succeed in vocational/educational undertakings;
  – Improve familial relationships; and
  – Initiate productive community reintegration.

• The RSC strengthens and promotes accountability by:
  – Providing residential sanctions to high-risk offenders/defendants who are non-compliant or at risk of violating their release conditions and pose a risk to public safety; and
  – Recommending effective community intervention strategies and prompt, meaningful sanctions that improve the likelihood of successful supervision outcomes.

• The RSC integrates offenders/defendants into the community by collaborating with the Office of Community Supervision Services (OCSIS), Pretrial Services Agency (PSA), and external stakeholders to create a seamless transition to community-based treatment providers and resources for vocational, educational, and employment opportunities.
Definitions

Assessments
Tools used to determine risk, need, and responsivity factors. Assessments are conducted to identify the supervision level for the offender’s/defendant’s risk and match specific interventions to the offender’s/defendant’s needs.

Criminogenic Needs
Criminogenic risk factors that are dynamic, e.g., antisocial cognitions, substance use, etc. When addressed, they can affect a person’s likelihood to engage in future criminal activity. Because criminogenic needs are treatable, they can guide an intervention strategy.

Criminogenic Risk
Characteristics of individuals associated with a greater likelihood to re-offend in the future. They include static and dynamic factors.

Criminogenic risks are categorized as follows:

The Top Four (Highly Predictive)
- History of Antisocial Behavior
- Antisocial Personality Pattern
- Antisocial Cognition
- Antisocial Associates

The Lower Four (Very Predictive)
- Poor family and/or poor marital relationships
- Low educational achievement/unemployment or under-employment
- Poor use of leisure/recreational time
- Substance use

Evidence-Based Practices (EBP)
The conscientious use of the best research currently available to provide the basis for informed decisions about the supervision of individuals, as well as the design and delivery of policies and practices to achieve maximum, measurable reductions in recidivism.

Interventions
Services designed to aid the offender/defendant and foster:
- Compliance with supervision conditions;
- Lawful self-management; and
- Improvements in conduct and circumstances.

Examples of behavioral interventions include, but are not limited to:
- Cognitive-behavioral intervention;
- Vocational training;
- Substance use disorder treatment; and
- Linkages to community resources.

Need Principle
The principle of assessing the offender’s/defendant’s criminogenic needs and targeting them through interventions.

Responsivity Principle
The principle of maximizing the offender’s/defendant’s ability to learn from a rehabilitative intervention, e.g., cognitive-behavioral treatment, by tailoring the intervention to the learning style, motivation, abilities, and strengths of the offender/defendant.

Risk Principle
The principle of matching the level of supervision and interventions to the offender’s/defendant’s risk to re-offend.

Supervision
Staying informed about an offender’s/defendant’s conduct and condition by collecting information. Responding to infractions and progress with defined supervision objectives, and reporting to the releasing authorities on the offender’s/defendant’s compliance/non-compliance with supervision conditions.

Examples of supervision include, but are not limited to:
- Visits to the offender’s/defendant’s home, places of employment or elsewhere in the community;
- Meetings in supervision offices;
- Criminal history record checks;
- On-going risk assessment and case planning;
- Urinalysis; and
- Employment verification, etc.
Roles and Responsibilities

RSC Staff (employees, contractors, and interns)

- Administers comprehensive assessments to:
  - Identify offenders’/defendants’ criminogenic risks and needs, as well as barriers to re-entry; and
  - Match offenders/defendants to empirically validated interventions, services and programs based on their risk and need factors.
- Develops case plans based on assessments of the offenders’/defendants’ risks and needs, as well as responsivity and protective factors.
- Tailors and delivers interventions to the learning style, motivation, abilities, and strengths of the offenders/defendants to maximize rehabilitation gain.
- Provides reintegration programming to support offenders’/defendants’ successful re-entry to their communities.
- Promotes physical and mental stability by:
  - Conducting comprehensive medical assessments at intake;
  - Providing crisis intervention and management services; and
  - Providing on-going access to medical, dental, and mental health services on-site and/or via community-based providers.
- Serves as a higher level multidimensional response to offenders/defendants who are non-compliant or at risk of violating their release conditions.
- Ensures a seamless system of services and referrals by:
  - Maintaining effective communication with OCSIS, PSA, contractors, stakeholders, and treatment vendors;
  - Facilitating Interdisciplinary Team Meetings (IDTs) to collaborate with internal and external stakeholders regarding offenders’/defendants’ progress and/or obstacles to programming;
  - Coordinating discharge/transition planning with internal and external stakeholders;
  - Incorporating referrals and linkages to community resources for behavioral health, vocational, educational, and employment opportunities; and
  - Matching the intervention continuum to the offenders’/defendants’ assessed risk to re-offend.
